Question 9 was not actively tested but served as a background variable in order to be able to distinguish respondents within the group of the self-employed.

One respondent from the UK states that she is self-employed, but is paid a salary or a wage by an agency. Usually, these respondents are considered as employees and not as self-employed. However, the respondent states that she is a foster carer. In the UK, local councils use fostering agencies to put children into foster care. This indicates that "agency" could be misunderstood or misinterpreted by self-employed respondents. Five respondents selected the "other" response option.
